Presented By: Paul Fontana

A registered and licensed Occupational Therapist with 36 years of professional experience since 1986 when Paul founded the Center for Work Rehabilitation, Inc., CWR has been the industry leader in providing injury prevention, rehabilitation, and return to work programs to the business community. In 2003 he was awarded a fellow by AOTA based in part on his expertise with identifying and working with symptoms magnifiers.

Presentation Objectives:

- 1. Identify and understand the three types of symptom magnifiers and a plan of action to effectively deal with each of these.
- 2. Understand the significance of quantifying non-physiological behaviors in each occupational therapy setting.
- 3. Identify various assessment tools available to any occupational therapist to incorporate in your setting.
